

Listen to my Voice

Jesus, The Good Shepherd

Sawubona

a Zulu greeting reflecting that when you look at a person they come into existence in your world, and yours in theirs.

It means “I see you”
In ‘seeing’ each other you are connected,
you are one.

A shepherd in a dark coat and hat, carrying a staff, stands in a misty forest with a large flock of sheep in the foreground. The scene is illuminated by a soft, golden light from the background, creating a serene and spiritual atmosphere. The shepherd is positioned in the center of the path, looking towards the light. The sheep are densely packed in the foreground, their woolly backs creating a textured pattern. The trees are tall and thin, their trunks forming a vertical grid that frames the scene.
